

1: David and Goliath

Once upon a time, there was a (adjective) _____ boy named (proper noun/protagonist) _____ who lived in (proper noun/place) _____ and took care of his family's (noun) _____.

One day, his (noun) _____ told (protagonist) _____ to take some (noun) _____ to his brothers who were serving as (plural noun) _____ for (proper noun) _____, working against the (proper noun) _____.

When (protagonist) _____ arrived at the camp, he could hear one of the (plural noun) _____ shouting insults at his people. His name was (proper noun/antagonist's name) _____ and he was a (noun) _____ of a man. He challenged the people of (proper noun 1) _____ to send a (noun) _____ to take him one-on-one.

Everyone was (adjective) _____ of (antagonist) _____, but young (protagonist) _____ was not. The (adjective) _____ boy was in fact very (adjective) _____ and he wanted to (verb) _____ his people. He asked permission from (proper noun 1) _____ if he could go onto the field and challenge the (noun) _____ himself.

(Proper noun 1) _____ eventually allowed (protagonist) _____ to fight (antagonist) _____, but he (verb) _____ for his safety. This is because (protagonist) _____ refused the (noun) _____ and (noun) _____ that the (plural noun) _____ had offered him. Instead, he preferred to challenge (antagonist) _____ with only a (noun) _____ and five (adjective) _____ (plural noun) _____.

When (antagonist) _____ saw (protagonist) _____ approach him without (noun) _____ or (noun) _____, he (verb) _____ at the boy and (verb) _____ to feed him to the (plural noun) _____. (Protagonist) _____ replied that he didn't need such (plural noun) _____, as he came to defeat him in the name of God.

Using his (noun) _____, (protagonist) _____ hurled a (noun) _____ at (antagonist) _____'s (noun) _____. The (noun) _____ fell to the ground. Once they saw that their champion had been beaten, the (plural noun) _____ became (adjective) _____ and (verb) _____, while (protagonist) _____'s people (verb) _____ them across the field.

(Protagonist) _____ soon became known for his (noun) _____ throughout (proper noun) _____ and was considered to be a (noun) _____. One day, they would make him (noun) _____.

2: Moses and the Plagues

One day, (male proper noun 1) _____ went to his brother, (male proper noun 2) _____, and asked him to let his people (verb) _____. His brother said no, so (proper noun 1) _____ went to the water of the (proper noun) _____.

He touched the water, and immediately it turned to (noun) _____. No one could (verb) _____ it anymore, so everyone was (adjective) _____. (Proper noun 1) _____ was amazed by the power God had given him.

But (proper noun 2) _____'s brother was (adjective) _____. He told (proper noun 1) _____ that he would not let (proper noun 1) _____'s people (verb) _____.

The next (noun) _____, (proper noun 1) _____ approached his brother again. He asked his brother to let them (verb) _____, or else he would be covered in (noun) _____. His brother still refused!

So, (proper noun 1) _____ covered everything in (noun) _____!

His brother said that he would let everyone (verb) _____ if (proper noun 1) _____ got rid of the (noun) _____. (Proper noun 1) _____ did so, but his brother changed his mind. (Proper noun 1) _____ was given power by God to (verb) _____ many more (plural noun) _____, (plural noun) _____, and (plural noun) _____ at his brother. But his brother wouldn't give in.

Finally, God sent (proper noun 2) _____ the worst one of all. Unless his brother obeyed, the (adjective) _____ (noun) _____ of each family would (verb) _____. Only those who put (noun) _____ across their (noun) _____ would escape. (Proper noun 1) _____'s brother still refused to listen, so everyone was very (adjective) _____. Finally, he agreed and let (proper noun 1) _____ and his people (verb) _____.

3: Ammon

(Proper noun 1) _____ went to the land of (proper noun 2) _____. As he entered it, the people there (verb) _____ him and took him to their (noun) _____.

(Proper noun 1) _____ told (proper noun 2) _____ that he wanted to (verb) _____ with the people. (Proper noun 2) _____ was pleased and had his men (verb) _____ (proper noun 1) _____.

After he said that he would be a (noun) _____ to (proper noun 2) _____. (Proper noun 1) _____ was sent to help (verb) _____ his (noun) _____.

One day, as (proper noun 1) _____ and other (plural noun) _____ took the (plural noun) _____ to the (noun) _____, some robbers (verb) _____ the animals in order to (verb) _____ them.

(Proper noun 1) _____'s fellow (plural noun) _____ were (adjective) _____. (Proper noun 2) _____ had (verb) _____ his other (plural noun) _____ who had (verb) _____ animals to these robbers.

(Proper noun 1) _____ knew that this was his chance to use the Lord's power to win the (noun) _____ of the people. Then they would (verb) _____ to his teachings.

(Proper noun 1) _____ told the other (plural noun) _____ that if they fix things with the animals, (proper noun 2) _____ would not (verb) _____ them.

(Proper noun 1) _____ and the other (plural noun) _____ (verb) _____ the (plural noun) _____ back to the (noun) _____.

When the robbers (verb) _____ again, (proper noun 1) _____ told the other (plural noun) _____ to guard the (plural noun) _____ while he went to (verb) _____ the robbers.

The robbers were not (adjective) _____ of (proper noun 1) _____. They thought that it would be easy to (verb) _____ him.

The power of God was with (proper noun 1) _____. He (verb) _____ (noun) _____ at the robbers and (verb) _____ some of them. This made the rest of them very (adjective) _____.

When they tried to (verb) _____ (proper noun 1) _____ he cut off the (plural noun) _____ of everyone who raised a (noun) _____ to (verb) _____ him. (Adjective) _____, the robbers ran away.

The other (plural noun) _____ took the cut-off (plural noun) _____ to (proper noun 2) _____ and told him about (proper noun 1) _____'s great (noun) _____ and what he had done.

(Proper noun 2) _____ was (adjective) _____. He wanted to see (proper noun 1) _____, but he was (adjective) _____. He thought that (proper noun 1) _____ was the (noun) _____, but (proper noun 1) _____ later explained that this was God.

4: Pharaoh's dream

(Proper noun 1) _____ was stuck in prison for (verb + ing) _____ (proper noun 2) _____'s wife, but he didn't do it! Luckily, his good behavior let him lead other convicts such as his cellmates. His first cellmate was convicted for (noun) _____, and the second for (noun) _____. The (noun) _____ had jailed them all for no good reason!

One day, (proper noun 1) _____ found out that his cellmates had both had (adjective) _____ dreams.

The (noun 1) _____ explained his (adjective) _____ dream first. In his dream, he saw three (plural noun) _____ full of (plural noun) _____. In his (noun) _____, he held (proper noun 2) _____'s cup, and he (verb, past tense) _____ the cup with (noun) _____ from the (noun) _____. Then he put the cup in (proper noun 2) _____'s own (noun) _____.

With God's help, (proper noun 1) _____ gave the (noun 1) _____ the interpretation, saying that in three (plural noun) _____ he would be (verb + ing) _____ his job as (proper noun 2) _____'s (noun) _____. (Proper noun 1) _____ asked the (noun 1) _____ to remember him when he got out of prison so that he could help (proper noun 1) _____ be (verb + past participle) _____.

The (noun 2) _____ then shared his dream with (proper noun 1) _____, explaining that in his dream, he was (verb + ing) _____ three (plural noun) _____ of (noun) _____ for (proper noun 2) _____ on his (noun) _____.

On his way to deliver the (noun) _____, (plural noun) _____ ate up the (plural noun) _____ from the (noun) _____.

This time, (proper noun 1) _____'s interpretation was not so (adjective) _____.

(Proper noun 1) _____ told the (noun 2) _____ that in three (plural noun) _____, the (noun) _____ would have him (verb + past participle) _____.

Just as (proper noun 1) _____ had said, within three (plural noun) _____ both interpretations came true. The (noun 1) _____ was (verb + past participle) _____ a job, and the (noun 2) _____ was (verb + past participle) _____. But contrary to his promise, the (noun 1) _____ forgot all about (proper noun) _____ until two whole (plural noun) _____ later!